electricity consumed by that city. The Telluride Company sells a portion of its power to the Utah Light and Traction Company, and with the remainder supplies mining camps and rural towns.

The Present Status.—Utah, with her twenty-eight counties, containing 124 cities and towns, has a collective population of 429,191, less than one-third of which is found in Salt Lake City, the capital of the State. While the principal occupations of the people are farming, stock-raising, mining and manufacturing, the learned professions and the fine arts have
